This guide serves as an overview and directory for the 22 towns covered by the Wachusett Medical Reserve Corps in Franklin and Worcester County, Massachusetts. The 22 towns included in this division are listed below. This guide was made possible under a grant provided by NACCHO- National Association of County and City Health Officials. This project was compiled by Jane Vongvirath, Public Health student intern at Worcester State University.

We wish to acknowledge and thank all those that gave their time to speak with us, to the 60+ members of the Wachusett Medical Reserve Corps who answered the survey questions about their town and to the committee that reviewed and edited the information. A special thank you to Jane Vongvirath, who put in hours upon hours to research and collate the data collected.

Wachusett

Community Needs Assessment

This document is a review of the twenty-two (22) communities under the support of the Wachusett Medical Reserve Corps (WMRC) as part of the overall National Medical Reserve Corps mission and vision to provide qualified volunteers to assist during an emergency event.

The primary purpose of this Community Needs Assessment was to gather relevant information and highlight concerns that each of the twenty-two communities felt was most important to them. In addition to concerns, the assessment was also expected to highlight commonalities across communities. The results and information obtained in the community assessment will be used to support the Wachusett MRC strategic planning, sustainability, and development of programs to enhance and continue support of the communities served. The secondary purpose of undertaking this Community Needs Assessment was to organize public statistics and resources within each community for the benefit of the residents and with the hope of strengthening and expanding collaborations.

Population and health statistics can often offer a window to the make-up and health of the community; however, in addition to the statistics we also wanted to add comments from the residents themselves who work and live in the 22 communities that the Wachusett Medical Reserve Corps serves. For this purpose, a survey was developed. Time was spent traveling through our region's townships noting the many different densities and living styles of our communities and speaking with the residents who are recognized as key leaders, resulting in sixteen (16) in-person interviews. Additionally, online surveys were sent out to all 600 MRC members with a 10% response (sixty-one responses). Within the surveys, we found numerous common themes that have influenced the quality of life in each community.

The topics included in our survey were....

- Transportation
- Nutrition
- Medical Services
- Internet Access
- Housing
- Behavioral Health
- Infrastructure
- Health Education

Transportation

Throughout every community, transportation was a primary and recurrent issue representing a significant barrier to many residents in each community who do not have transportation. It was expressed that residents are not able to easily access a variety of services, specifically related to nutrition and medical services, which will be further explained. Not having a reliable means of transportation such as a privately owned car or public transportation requires alternative solutions or “workarounds” such as dependency on family and friends, taxis, or go without.

The town of Royalston recently contracted with Montachusett Regional Transit Authority (MART) for a van service for the Senior population primarily. Royalston, like many of our rural communities including Oakham, New Salem, New Braintree, and Hardwick, is isolated and distanced from stores and other amenities. While the MART services are welcome in each community, there are limitations to where these vans will travel, and the schedule for shopping and medical visits is not adequate.

Options to address transportation include:

- Explore setting up local volunteer groups to offer transportation assistance.
- Expand MAART schedule.

Nutrition

Our focus was to gather information about available stores to supply affordable and nutritious food. We discovered that a major barrier for good nutrition is directly related to transportation. We also learned that some of our communities could be considered food deserts by the following definition, “an area that has limited access to affordable and nutritious food.”

While we knew that the town of Winchendon had lost their one and only supermarket, we were surprised that communities like Rutland and Sterling would also meet the definition. Some families have food assistance benefits and those residing in food desert towns often travel out of town to use these benefits.

In the town of Winchendon this example is highlighted since geographically it is on the border with New Hampshire. The nearest grocery store to Winchendon is in Rindge, New Hampshire; however, purchasing goods with benefits issued by the state of Massachusetts such as food stamps is limited to purchases in Massachusetts. When there is no transportation access to grocery stores, residents resort to shopping in convenient places such as Cumberland Farm’s, CVS, and Family Dollar where state issued benefits are accepted for food items. Convenient stores are not currently viable options to obtain fresh, affordable, and nutritious food needed to maintain good health.

The issue of nutrition and food deserts cannot be solved with a one-size-fits-all approach; it is helpful to take into consideration the specifics of the population and each of their geographical needs. In some communities, residents expressed a desire to open a supermarket to alleviate the food desert issue. Though this may be beneficial in some areas, it is worthy to note that in some rural communities where there are many farms, people may prefer to get food from their farms, and only go to the supermarket if needed.

Some options to address access to affordable and nutritious food:

- Sponsor formation of a farmer's market
Explore the option of developing an all-year Farmer's Collaborative.
- Create a community garden.
- Utilize delivery services for grocery stores.
- Explore the possibility of bringing in small grocery stores.
- Expand food pantries.

Medical Services

There is difficulty accessing various medical services even in communities where transportation is not a major issue. Basic primary care services were reported to be not adequate primarily due to long waitlists making it difficult to schedule appointments. Many residents expressed an urgent need for specialty care such as pediatrics and maternity services.

Although two hospitals, Athol Hospital and Clinton Hospital, are used to provide 'stop gap' medical care and are utilized by many residents in the area, they are small and do not hold all the services that are needed. In Clinton, a big concern was no access to dialysis treatment and no transportation for out-of-town dialysis services.

Some options to improve medical care are:

- Greater access to visiting services of all kinds.
- Support the growth of Community Health Network programs and other medical services such as establish a unit for dialysis treatment.
- Advocacy to maintain current medical services important to the community.
- Telehealth
This method enables residents to meet virtually with any medical professional; however, internet access is a necessary component to this.

As technology readily emerges and has infiltrated every aspect of our lives, internet access has become a necessity rather than being a nice amenity.

Many towns emphasized that the internet has become a critical and valuable asset. Each town is at a different point in bringing internet services to their community. Town libraries are typically the communication hub and internet access are a significant piece. For some, especially in the rural communities, this has become an avenue for internet access. In Oakham where homes are some distance apart, the community Facebook page is a very active communication tool and brings residents together for town activities. In Winchendon, teens take advantage of free access to the internet at the YMCA, offering a safe online environment. In Sterling, the whole town is in the process of upgrading to a faster internet provider; it will take another 5 years to finish the project.

Internet advancements can provide access to services that may otherwise not be available in that community or perhaps restricted. The internet also lends the ability to access certain services without assistance as long as the user is familiar with the use of the internet and technology. Town applications that have moved online can be more accessible, especially benefiting individuals who are homebound or have limited mobility. Telehealth can be a useful tool when driving to medical services is not viable. People can also utilize delivery services to have whatever they need to arrive at their doorstep.

Through the Community Needs Assessment, we learned that advanced internet technology creates barriers for some and potentially limits specific groups of people. Since the increase of internet use is inevitable, there must be adjustments made so that all populations have easy and convenient access. It was expressed that seniors find it unfamiliar and for some, difficult to embrace. Amenities like touch screens may be harder to use due to physical limitations such as uncontrollable hand tremors. Usernames, passwords, and general updates may be hard to remember and contribute to people feeling uncomfortable with using the internet.

Some options related to internet- access:

- Have the local library/Senior center host seminars for seniors on how to use technology and how to distinguish misinformation from facts.
- Increase free internet access points across towns.
- Implement intergenerational programs that use online websites for teaching and discussion.

Decent and affordable housing is an important factor for quality of life. When there is a lack thereof, it can exacerbate many social issues such as homelessness, deteriorating mental conditions, poor physical health, and poor school performance. This is referenced by survey participants in Athol, where we were told that some old buildings have been used for housing without proper inspection or cleanup. As a result of this, it was found that children in Athol have high lead levels, prompting an increase for lead screening. In Rutland and Barre, it was expressed that the buildings that render to senior housing are older buildings with stairs that are narrow and limited elevator access. This is especially concerning because when looking at data from the CDC, falls accounted for 58.1% of mortality related to unintentional injury for ages 65+ in the year 2020¹.

In relation to housing, the study highlighted that rural communities face greater socioeconomic vulnerabilities evident by this common denominator throughout the different towns. Housing in many towns was described as expensive with few apartments available, while rental houses are often in disrepair and infested. The interviews in Athol and Orange mentioned that it is difficult for people to secure housing or obtain supplemental rental assistance. Many times, those who are mobility-impaired are unable to secure ground floor housing.

Some options related to improving accessibility to comfortable and reasonable housing:

- Put an emphasis on monitoring existing standards of health and safety in the rental units. There are three licensed lead inspectors who have been identified in the Wachusett region, and they are in the cities of Fitchburg and Leominster. To get contact information, look under the “Housing” section of the Community Resources section. For a complete list of inspectors throughout the whole state of Massachusetts, go here: <https://www.mass.gov/finding-and-removing-lead>.
- Build more complexes with Section 8 support and request an increase of housing vouchers from the US Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Have more rental spaces with a sliding fee based on income. Increase the pool of project based Section 8 housing in privately owned and managed rental units.
- Repurpose unused state and industrial facilities to use as housing, keeping in mind hazards that may be associated with older facilities.

The Covid-19 pandemic has helped the public recognize the importance of maintaining mental health. It cast a spotlight on how a compromised person is affected, such as experiencing diminished capacity to cope effectively when faced with stressful events and life experiences. Examining conditions that are disproportionately affecting residents' well-being in rural areas and the obstacles to implementing basic, evidence-based interventions to reduce psychological distress requires further assessment. Nonetheless, during the study, relevant information about the needs were collected.

Significantly contributing to the mental health issue is the lack of local activities. A common concern among numerous towns expressed is the absence of green spaces and other recreational facilities. Due to limited availability of spaces and programs, families are at a loss for activities outside of the home. The lack of entertainment / outdoor activities was correlated to significantly contributing to behavioral health issues and isolation. Most children are bound to their home environment which does not lend to physical movement and development. Investing in and developing accessible and safe outdoor recreational parks and family areas such as community centers, recreational centers, senior centers, pools, nature trails and courts and sports fields with outdoor lighting to name a few, would help to address the disparity between maintaining the community well-being and behavioral health concerns.

Rural communities such as Oakham and Orange would like to see more accessibility to mental health services in their area. This was especially prevalent with high school students during the pandemic. Winchendon expressed that outreach is difficult for behavioral health services. In Royalston, it was revealed that mental health emergencies are handled by the police who are not trained in that area, so bringing in mental health services would be beneficial.

Some options that support behavioral health:

- Build Recreational Programs
- Build Parks/Green Space

One suggestion offered to promote accessibility to playgrounds is incorporating handicapped swings, an idea echoed by many town leaders.

- Create a local drop-in center.
- Offer violence-prevention programs.

Research and studies have shown that these programs change the thinking processes and behaviors that may lead to aggression and violence in youth. Participation in these program tend to enhance skills such as communication, empathy, and conflict-management. In a systematic review of school-based violence prevention programs, there were reductions in violent behavior². Some resources related to violence prevention can be found here: <https://youth.gov/youth-topics/violence-prevention>

High-quality infrastructure promotes optimal standards of living, influencing health behavior, social life, a sense of security and economics. Many concerns overlap previous comments and discussions, emphasizing poor accessibility to adequate housing, an abundance of unused land and buildings, poor road conditions, and a need for recreational development.

However, due to the diversity of our towns, some communities also expressed individual concerns specific to their own communities.

Westminster: During the Covid-19 pandemic, TYCO safety products, a manufacturing company, permanently closed. Hundreds of people in and around the Westminster area were employed by this company. This scenario changed the workforce of residents, and individuals had to find new jobs. Ultimately, it affected the demographics of the town, shifting from blue-collar workers to working class. Besides the change in economic conditions, Westminster has also had some clashes with water quality. In the year 2021, there was a high sodium content in water affecting a number of homes. More recently during Spring 2022, a PFAS6 contamination affected over 100 houses, with fears that it would go into town water. Whereas the safe threshold for PFAS6 is ~20 ppt, the water was being contaminated with ~350 ppt.

Orange: On June 4, 2022, a big fire located in the mills broke out, spreading over several buildings. An estimated $4 million is needed for clean-up, but the town currently does not have the funds for this purpose. Presently, the site sits as a big pile of waste that has become hazardous, including asbestos in the windows. Concerns have been raised relating to homeless individuals seeking shelter in the rubble area, placing them in a vulnerable health hazard and dangerous environment.

Oakham: The Oakham Board of Health (BoH) is experiencing difficulties with inadequate funding. The BoH has many ideas that cannot be implemented with strained finances and limited staff. Due to these financial constraints, they are unable to act and bring solutions to many issues, such as not being able to take any action when a house becomes uninhabitable. This concern is also shared by several other Boards of Health.

Health Education

Finally, one of the most important roles in public health is community health education, which enables individuals to have the knowledge needed to pursue a healthy lifestyle. Public health addresses several community health topics such as disease prevention, environmental health, substance abuse, behavioral health, nutrition, and emergency preparedness to name a few. There were some specific needs and concerns expressed across communities.

In the town of Barre: Age-appropriate sex education and how to access it. Some topics under the umbrella of sex education include intimate relationships, human sexual anatomy, sexual reproduction, contraception, and sexually transmitted infections. Developmentally appropriate sexual education in children and adolescents has shown to yield numerous benefits such as preventing the risk of adolescent pregnancy, reducing the risk of sexually transmitted infections, and encouraging safe choices about healthy relationships³.

In the town of Sterling: Identified is town-wide education regarding ticks and mosquitoes that reduce vector populations and prevent disease transmission. Mosquito-borne disease prevention could be implemented via personal protection practices and community action. More information on how to carry out these actions may be found here:

<https://www.cdc.gov/mosquitoes/guidelines/west-nile/prevention-control/community-engagement.html>.

In the town of Winchendon: It was expressed that the town is still a very conservative community, and due to this, therefore it would be beneficial to educate the community on inclusivity (such as being LGBTQ+), especially for the younger generations. Education will not promote a safer and more accepting environment, but these social and emotional supports will foster healthier developmental outcomes in adolescents. Especially in LGBTQ+ youth, this could lead to improved academic motivation, fewer feelings of disconnectedness, and a reduction in suicidal ideation⁴.

In the town of Orange: Nutrition was found identified as a needed topic for education, especially for the youth population. It was observed that students frequent local nearby convenience stores to purchase sugar-filled drinks and overly salted snacks in the form of sodas and chips. The hope is with nutrition education, students will learn to choose alternative healthy choices.

In the town of Oakham: Opioid education for the community was identified as a need. Although it is crucial to treat people who are presently addicted to opioids, it is also crucial to prevent people from developing an opioid use disorder. Education about over-the-counter medications and prescription opioids are important. Not only is the educational aspect needed, the lack of readily available Narcan for the resident in need was identified. It was reported the closest place to get Narcan would be in Worcester or Barre.

In the town of Athol: Athol wants to break the stigma to talking about mental health and mental illness. It was discussed that this topic is very difficult to address and therefore reducing negative attitudes, raising awareness, and promoting acceptance and recovery are not possible if there are no discussions around it.

Another identified area for need education was on pediatric asthma and smoking. It was reported that the smoking rates are high in the area (especially among pregnant women). Also reported is youth vaping as well.

In the town of Ware: Although not officially listed as a town covered under the Wachusett MRC, Ware is near the towns of New Salem, Petersham, and Hardwick, and it is reasonable to expect what is found in one community may spill over to nearby communities. WMRC members who are Ware residents expressed a growing concern related to teen dating violence, which can consist of physical, emotional, and sexual violence. Education and the need to address this issue is important and could be done by focusing on reducing risk factors and fostering protective behaviors. The desired outcome would be to create spaces such as communities with role models (teachers, coaches, mentors, youth leaders, etc.) that adolescents may seek in times of need⁵.

Ashburnham

<https://www.ashburnham-ma.gov/home/bulletins/town-hall>

Originally “Dorchester for Canada”, Ashburnham became a township in 1765 and was renamed after the Earl of Ashburnham, who “had the ear of the king”. The town is located on the border of Massachusetts and New Hampshire and is home to Mount Watatic- a mountain with spectacular views. Not only is it open to the public for hiking, but also other recreation including mountain biking and snowshoeing. Mount Watatic is also at the intersection of the Wapack Trail and the Massachusetts Midstate Trail systems, making this town an amazing destination for those who enjoy nature.

Athol

By User: Magicpiano - Own work, CC BY-SA 4.0, <https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=22033924>

Originally named Pequoiag, Athol was established as a town in the year 1762. The town has a legacy of being the “Tool Town” due to past establishments of the L.S. Starrett Company and the Union Twist Drill Co. Today, Athol is home to attractions such as the Bearsden Conservation Area, Alan E. Rich Environmental Park, and the Ellinwood Country Club. The largest employers in the area include the still-present Starrett Company and Athol Hospital.

Barre

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Barre_%28CDP%29,_Massachusetts

Standing as a small and rural community, Barre was originally a part of Rutland until the town was incorporated and called “Hutchinson” in 1774. Two years later, the town was renamed to what we all know now as Barre. Barre was known in the industrial revolution for producing farming equipment and palm leaf hats and supplied gun powder to the Union Army during the Civil War. Popular attractions in Barre include the Stone Cow Brewery and the Barre Falls Dam.

Clinton

By Marcbela (Marc N. Belanger) Photographer: (Marc N. Belanger) - Own work, Public Domain,

Clinton was incorporated as a town in 1850 and became an industrialized mill town. Clinton has a rich history in the industrial revolution. Brothers Erastus and Horatio Bigelow pioneered the textile industry with Erastus' inventions of the power loom and carpet loom.

Bigelow's carpets became so successful that they could be seen in notable establishments such as The White House and the S.S. Titanic. Today, Clinton is described as a closed-knit community and is home to the Museum of Russian Icons, Central Park, and Fuller Field.

Fitchburg

<https://bond-building.com/project/63ikimedia-city-hall-campus/>

The city of Fitchburg is in the Northern part of Worcester County. In 1762, it was incorporated as a separate township and given the name “Fitchburg” for its synonym of “Heroism”. Fitchburg has an abundance of parks and playgrounds such as Cogshall Park, suitable for individuals wanting to spend time outside. There are various other attractions for individuals looking to explore Fitchburg, such as the Fitchburg Art Museum, Great Wolf Lodge Waterpark, River Styx Brewing, or even walk around the Fitchburg State University college campus.

Gardner

By Marcbela (Marc N. Belanger) – Own work, Public Domain,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=4534956>

Gardner was formally the center of the furniture industry and is known today as the “Chair City of the World”. This was due to at one point in time producing over 1 million chairs annually. Today, there stands a 20 foot high chair called “Bicentennial Giant Chair” as a testimony to Gardner’s role in the chair manufacturing industry. Gardner is also home to many sites such as Dunn State Park, SK Haunted Victorian Mansion, Mount Wachusett Community College, and Priscilla Candy Shop.

Hardwick

By John Phelan – Own work, CC BY-SA 4.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=51525700>

Hardwick was first settled in 1737 and officially incorporated as a town in 1739. In 1762, General Timothy Ruggles started the Hardwick Fair, which is now the oldest annual fair in the U.S. Offering agriculture exhibits, music, food, and more, the 260th year of the fair took place in 2022. Hardwick offers many attractions, such as having one of the only few 19th-century covered bridges in the state, and the Hardwick winery which is home to many award-winning wines.

Hubbardston

By Marcbela (Marc N. Belanger) – Own work, CC0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=15154234>

Home of the Wachusett Medical Reserve Corps, Hubbardston was incorporated as a separate district in 1767. The town was named after Thomas Hubbard, the Commissary General of the Province of Massachusetts, and Treasurer of Harvard College. Early economy was based on agriculture and small-scale chair and shoe manufacturing. Hubbardston is also home to the invention of the first backhoe swing frame. The town is distinguished for being unusually high at 1015 feet above sea level.

Leominster was incorporated as a town in the year 1740 and was named after Leominster, England. It is the birthplace of the traveling orchardist Johnny Chapman (Johnny Appleseed), who introduced apple trees throughout the Midwest. Leominster is also the home of Tupperware aiding in the city being coined the “Pioneer Plastics City”. Today, the town’s local economy is based on the manufacture of plastic articles, machinery, and other products. It is also the second-largest city in Worcester County. Local attractions include the Doyle Community Park and the Johnny Appleseed Festival in the fall of every year.

New Braintree

By User: Lyman School, CC BY-SA 3.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=52380881>

New Braintree is a small community characterized by its rural environment and farms. The town's agriculture roots go back to the 18th century when dairy farms and harvests became well-known, even producing over 200,000 pounds of cheese annually by the 19th century.

Today, a popular tourist attraction is hanging gliding, offering people the chance to see a birds-eye-view of New Braintree's beautiful scenery.

New Salem

By John Phelan – Own work, CC BY 3.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=11214468>

Although it is one of the smallest towns in the MRC population-wise, New Salem is the largest town by area in Franklin County. Much of the land is off-limits and protected as part of the Quabbin Reservation. New Salem also owns several islands in the reservoir, such as those around Russ Mountain. A scenic attraction in the town is Bear's Den, where people can visit a waterfall and historic mill. Some notable people from New Salem include Elisha Hunt Allen, a U.S. Congressman, and Adam Schoenberg, an Emmy Award winning and Grammy nominated Composer.

Oakham

By John Phelan – Own work, CC BY 3.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=9396857>

Oakham is a small, rural, and tranquil town located in northwest Worcester County. It was incorporated as a town in the year 1762. Oakham was predominantly a farming town during its growth, and employment was mainly provided by wagon manufacturing, wire products, and hat and bonnet shops. Around 30% of the town's land is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) due to being in the Quabbin reservoir.

Phillipston

By John Phelan – Own work, CC BY-SA 3.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=19751050>

Phillipston was originally incorporated as the town of Gerry in 1751 but got changed to Phillipston in 1814 after Lieutenant Governor William Phillips, Jr. Today, the town stands as a small and rural community, characterized by its forests and stonewalls. A big attraction in town is the Red Apple Farm, a family-owned orchard opens year-round offering apple picking, award-winning donuts, festivals, and more.

Princeton

By John Phelan - Own work, CC BY 3.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=16100123>

Princeton has a rich history and heritage including being one of the hotbeds of dissension causing Shay's Rebellion in 1786 and being the birthplace of Edward Savage- an artist known for his portraits of George Washington. Today, Princeton is a quiet country village that is mostly residential. Perhaps the biggest landmark in town is Wachusett Mountain, one of New England's most accessible ski resorts also offering hiking, biking, and picturesque views.

Royalston

By John Phelan - Own work, CC BY-SA 4.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=42781317>

Royalston was originally called Royal-shire, after Isaac Royal, one of the town's proprietors. The peak of the population was in 1840 with 1,667 residents. After the Civil war, the population gradually declined, evolving into the quiet town that it remains as today. Nearly 40% of the town is permanently protected land including three waterfalls: Doane's Falls, Royalston Falls and Spirit Falls. There is also Tully Lake, Long Pond, and 21-mile Tully trail. These sites have led to a good place for recreation and tourism.

In the year 2022, Rutland celebrated their 300-year anniversary as a town! Rutland is the geographic center of Massachusetts, with the Central Tree marking the general spot. The town also has many annual celebrations such as a four-day-long Fourth of July celebration and the Central Tree Chowder Chili challenge in August, making it a town with rich culture and a close community.

Sterling

By Marcbela (Marc N. Belanger) - Own work, Public Domain,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=4534802>

Sterling was incorporated in the year 1781. The name is derived from General William “Lord Stirling” Alexander, who served under general George Washington. This town is where the poem and nursery rhyme “Mary Had a Little Lamb” originated. It is also notable that Sterling has a land size comparable to Worcester, but a large portion of the town is covered by water. Thus, it is a rural town yet large land size.

Templeton

By John Phelan - Own work, CC BY-SA 4.0,
<https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=52270954>

Templeton is in Worcester County and is bordered by Royalston, Winchendon, Gardner, Hubbardston, and Phillipston. The town is comprised of four main villages: Baldwinville, Templeton Center, East Templeton, and Otter River. Operated by the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation is the Otter River State Forest, offering camp sites, a swimming beach, picnic areas, and a ball field. A notable mention is that Royalston Cultural Council produces an award-winning Open Mic Series in winter season at the town hall.

Westminster

CC BY-SA 3.0, <https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=590063>

Westminster was settled in 1737 and officially incorporated in 1759. The town is best known for being home to the Westminster Cracker Company. Though the crackers are now produced in Vermont, the iconic original building still stands tall today. Westminster also has four entries in the National Register of Historic Places: Ahijah Wood House, Nathan Wood house, Ezra Wood-Levi Warner place, and Westminster Village-Academy Hill historic District.

Winchendon

CC BY-SA 3.0, <https://commons.wikimedia.org/w/index.php?curid=314181>

The town was incorporated in 1764 and named after Nether Winchendon, a village in England who was owned by Governor Francis Bernard, who signed the town's incorporation into law. Winchendon includes the villages of Waterville and Winchendon Springs (also known as Spring Village). The original giant rocking horse was built in Winchendon in 1912 by Morton Converse, a businessman who manufactured acids and wooden products. The original rocking horse had fallen into disrepair, so a replica was made in 1988, which is now on display.
