

Snowplows Steal the Show at Special Storytime

Hubbardston, MA - A collaborative effort between multiple local departments resulted in an enriching storytime event for local children on Wednesday. The Hubbardston Department of Public Works (DPW) provided the main attraction by bringing two snowplows for the kids to explore.

"Over the past summer, the children were utterly enchanted seeing the fascinating machines working on Main Street. This inspired us to reach out to the DPW about providing that same up-close experience for our youngest residents during storytime," said Patricia Lowe, Storytime Lead at the Hubbardston Public Library. "We want to give a huge thank you to the Hubbardston DPW for generously agreeing to provide this unique and memorable opportunity for the kids to see these incredible machines up close," Lowe added.

"Intra-government collaborations like this storytime event bring tremendous value to our community," said Hubbardston Town Administrator Nathan Boudreau. "By working across departments, we can create special experiences for our residents and showcase how local government strives to benefit Hubbardston in creative ways."
